Logline: Acting on an outrageous bet, Peggy Wilcox and her best friend, Katrina Bach, go on a road trip searching for the perfect men, only to get wrapped up in a Hollywood murder case.

SYNOPSIS

Living in San Jose, best friends Peggy Wilcox and Katrina Bach find themselves in their mid-thirties, unmarried and fed up with their life circumstances. Peggy, an avid animal lover who owns a pet store, and Katrina, a waitress, weary from the pitfalls of dating, find themselves dejected and desperate.

Peggy's mother, Esther Wilcox-Harris-Jones, a perpetual man toy, is horrified by Peggy's inability to find a husband. When Penelope Randall, an acquaintance of Esther's, announces that her daughter is engaged to be married to a wealthy man, Esther's competitive jealous streak takes over and erases all form of sanity. Esther retaliates by making a lying bet at Peggy's expense. Esther informs Penelope, and three other women, that Peggy has been proposed to by four men: an architect, a congressman, a doctor and a parolee, and each woman bets on which make-believe suitor will be Peggy's choice for a husband. Esther spins the bet to add to the excitement, proclaiming that each hopeful soon-to-be son-in-law will wait four weeks for Peggy's reply.

Peggy, along with Katrina, turn Esther's outrageous bet to their advantage. The women travel to Los Angeles with a four-week timeframe in hopes of hooking fiancés. From the time the girls leave San Jose in their red corvette and drive to Los Angeles, their adventures get crazier as humorous capers unfold, even ending up as suspects in a wacky murder, leading to their arrests.

With time ticking by, and no prospects in sight, the women see themselves as miserable failures. Driving back to San Jose, the girls are saved in the nick-of-time when Peggy accidentally slams the car into a stray dog. Rushing the wounded pooch to the vet, Peggy and Katrina are both mesmerized by Derrick Preston, the veterinarian. Derrick is struck by his and Peggy's compatible love of animals, and Derrick falls for Peggy.

When Peggy returns to San Jose an engaged woman, Esther makes it clear to her lady friends that a veterinarian is indeed a doctor, and Esther wins the bet. Katrina announces that she is adopting a beautiful baby boy. Peggy and Katrina both land their man and find success on their Southern California man hunt.
